Subject	Security evidence of Example Electrical Ltd

Dear Sir or Madam,

thank you for your security questionnaire. Attached you find our security self-declaration as of 23 October 2026. It answers the questions on the state of our information security; where your questionnaire asks something the self-declaration does not cover, the mapping table on the following page shows where the answer is, or we answer in writing on request.

Example Electrical Ltd is a business with 10 to 49 staff and no IT department of its own. We deliver services on site or in our workshop, with some customer data (contacts, plans, orders). The measures described are those of a business of our size; the Directive names the size of the entity expressly among the criteria of proportionality.

Of the 24 points of the self-declaration, 7 are in place today, 10 partly, 6 not yet, 1 not applicable to us. For every point that is partly or not yet in place, the attached action plan names the measure, the responsible person and the date: the first wave by 22 November 2026, the rest by 21 April 2027. We prefer to name a gap with a date rather than answer yes where it is not true.

Incidents that may affect you we report within 24 hours of becoming aware, by phone, through the management or the deputy; the report comes from Owner or managing director (mobile phone and the office email address).

If one of the open points is a condition for the contract or the policy, please tell us; we will move it into the first wave.

[If the recipient is a financial entity under DORA: Please tell us in writing whether you classify our service as supporting a critical or important function; the extent of the contractual requirements depends on it.]

Kind regards

Owner or managing director, Example Electrical Ltd
